Additional Cameras Installed in the Law Library

In response to the theft of two laptops and some power chargers in the Law Library, the University and the Law Library have installed additional cameras in police-recommended strategic locations in the Law Library. Questions or concerns about the new security measures can always be addressed to the Associate Dean for Library & Information Services, Timothy Coggins.

Welcome to Some New Ones!

Come by the library to wish our Associate Director good luck!

Help us bid farewell to Suzanne Corriell, Associate Director of the Law Library, who has accepted a new position as the Associate Circuit Librarian with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in Richmond. Suzanne will begin her new position at the Fourth Circuit, overseeing their daily operations of all library locations, on Monday, Feb. 9, and her last day with us is Friday, Feb. 6.

Ms. Corriell joined the Law Library in 2007 as a Reference and Research Services Librarian, was promoted to Head of Reference and Research Services in 2008, and became Associate Director in 2012. She has an exceptional combination of knowledge and skills, strives to provide quality services for all library users, and possesses many other skills and abilities that make her an excellent professional librarian and colleague. Please join all of us in the Law Library in wishing her well and thanking her for her tremendous service and contributions to our community.

Our new Access Services Associate can help with your borrowing needs!

Ashley McCarty joined the staff in October 2014 as the library's Access Services Associate. Ms. McCarty is an alum of the University of Richmond with a degree in history. Before coming to the Law Library, she worked in Boatwright Memorial Library in the circulation and interlibrary loan departments and performed minor book repair to help maintain the collection. Now you can find her every weekday morning behind the Law Library's circulation desk, where she works with Ms. Zwirner and the library's student associates and is responsible for circulation, interlibrary lending, and course reserves. Ms. McCarty is happy to be a part of the Law Library's team, and can be reached at the circulation desk or at 287-6334 to answer any questions about book renewals or course reserves.

New Reference and Research Services Librarian!

Please welcome new Reference and Research Services Librarian, Kat Klepfer, who started this January. Ms. Klepfer received a joint JD/MLIS from the Florida State University College of Law and her B.A. in Classical Studies from the University of Florida. During law school, she was the editor-in-chief of the Journal of Transnational Law and Policy and the President of FSU's OUTlaw chapter. Before coming to Richmond, she worked in the FSU Law Library as an intern and research assistant and loves answering research and citation questions at the reference desk. When she's not at the reference desk, you can find her in her office (L24) or reach her at kklepfer@richmond.edu!

Stay tuned for our upcoming Spring Programs in the Law Library!

E-Resource of the Month: Making of Modern Law

The Muse Law Library now has an electronic subscription to the Making of Modern Law Primary Sources I & II, which contains constitutional convention materials, including reports, journals, proceedings, debates, rules of order, and information for the use of delegates; the text of enacted and proposed city charters and ordinances. The database is available in two parts but is cross-searched as the default search mode. If you need assistance, please contact a reference librarian (x8685; lawrefdesk@richmond.edu).

VPN Setup

Ever find yourself at home and wishing you could get to your Netfiles directory or library databases on your computer? Well, you can! VPN (Virtual Private Network) software allows your computer to act as though it is on campus. To download the software (while on campus), go to <http://is.richmond.edu/network-internet/index.html> and follow the prompts. If you need assistance, please stop by the Law Library Computer Help Desk, call, or email (x8945; kedwards@richmond.edu).
